Lessons this Week

This week is our immersion week. We have finished Cycle 3 and will begin Cycle 4 next week. This week allows us to finish up any incomplete work and work on special projects. Since we did not have any new lessons this week to tell you about I wanted to take a moment to brag about the 6th grade students!

Last weekend was the annual toothpick bridge competition. All of our students completed bridges to enter. Every bridge passed the strict requirements of size, materials, and weight. Every bridge held the necessary tare weight of five pounds. Our bridges held between five and twenty-two pounds! The students should be proud of their hard work.

This week we had the annual Scholastic Book Fair in the 6th grade classroom. The book fair not only provides hundreds of dollars worth of books, it also provides money to help with our big trip expenses. The sixth grade students helped to set up the books, assisted the younger students in making their wish lists, escorted students to purchase books, and some even learned to run the cash register. I was so impressed with how the students showed so much kindness and patience when working with the younger students.

Our class has also decided to track the random acts of kindness they perform for each other. Each time someone does a kind act they write it down on a slip of paper and we are creating a chain to visually remind us of our positive actions.
