*"To aid life, leaving it free, however, that is the basic task of the educator."
~Maria Montessori*

E2 Classroom Activities: Maria Montessori wrote, "The greatest sign of success for a teacher is to be able to say, 'The children are now working as if I did not exist.'" We witnessed this lovely experience this week as we focused on long division in our division workshop. We gave a brief lesson to some students on how to teach division. The students who were secure in long division were able to assist other students who needed a bit of support. The energy in the classroom was busy and attentive. By the end of the workshop, the students who were not so sure about long division were able to feel more confident with the process. We also have begun supporting the students with how to organize their end of the year research projects. The project began with choosing a topic and then outlining what the five chapters will be. The next activity was to use a graphic organizer to arrange the paragraphs in their first chapter. Step by step the students are doing very well as they get on their way to creating a fantastic research project.
