We may not have been together in the classroom the past two weeks, but we have had many lessons and some fun during our online learning. We had a lesson on a type of poetry that first originated in Malaysia called a pantoum. This poetry style has a structure that repeats the second and fourth line in each stanza. We learned about the Archimedean solids and the students researched their faces, edges, and vertices. We had fun talking about El Dia De Los Muertos. We continue to work on reading comprehension and math work. The students were recently introduced to logic puzzles during our class meeting.
